

Anjali Jenna (AJ) Teigen

Associate

AJ Teigen's practice covers all aspects of patent law, including patent litigation, patent prosecution, post-grant proceedings before the Patent Trial and Appeal Board, licensing, opinions, and counselling. She handles matters mostly in the life sciences field, including the biomedical, chemical, biological, and pharmaceutical technologies.

Prior to joining Rothwell Figg as an associate, Ms. Teigen was a summer associate at the firm in 2017. During this time, she assisted with legal research, patent applications, office action responses, drafting briefs, IPRs before the Patent Trial and Appeal Board, and pro bono counseling. She is also a former judicial intern for the Honorable J. Michelle Childs of the District of South Carolina. In that role, she spent the majority of her time drafting memos for intellectual property cases. Additionally, Ms. Teigen has prior experience in engineering and research, including as a student researcher and design engineer at Applied Bioengineering Design, and as an assistant researcher at University of Tokyo, Ushida-Furukawa Tissue Engineering Laboratory.

Ms. Teigen graduated with a J.D. from Washington & Lee University School of Law, where she was the IP director of the Sports, Entertainment, and Intellectual Property Law Society and the recipient of both the Washington & Lee Intellectual Property Law Fellowship and the Federal Circuit Bar Association's 2015 Helen W. Nies Scholarship. She received her B.S. in bioengineering, with a concentration in biomaterials, from Clemson University.
