

Will Divergent Copyright Laws Between the US and UK Influence Where AI Companies Do Business?

Authored by Jennifer Maisel and published in Wolters Kluwer IP Litigator Article 12.30.22

Partner Jennifer Maisel's article, "Will Divergent Copyright Laws Between the US and UK Influence Where AI Companies Do Business?," originally published on the firm's emerging companies blog, RF Emerge, was published in Wolters Kluwer's IP Litigator, November/December 2022, Volume 28 Number 6.

IP Litigator provides briefings on the latest thinking and strategies for successful intellectual property litigation and enforcement. Each issue supplies valuable guidance and practice tips from top litigators and industry experts in patent, copyright, ITC and customs, trademark, and international litigation. From policing the market for infringers, to conducting discovery, selecting expert witnesses, or calculating damages, you'll discover the proven methods winning today's IP cases.

To read the article, please click on the PDF linked below.

Key Contact

Jennifer B. Maisel

Related Areas of Practice

Copyright Prosecution

Technologies

Artificial Intelligence (AI) & Machine Learning (ML)